Relationships with Teachers/Teacher Aides

Teachers are responsible for guiding you and helping you to learn. You cannot treat them the same as a friend or a member of your family. You can develop good relationships with teachers/teacher aides and help them to do their job by:

- X Speaking and acting respectfully
- X Following instructions and listening to advice
- X Telling them if you are having problems
- X Thanking them if they help you
- X Politely encouraging others to do the right thing
- X Offering help if needed e.g. carrying books

Do you start with a “hello” when you talk to your teachers?

Relationships with fellow students

As a student here you should strive to cooperate with all students at the school, not just friends or classmates. You can do this by:

- X Being a good role model in class
- X Working cooperatively in groups
- X Including everybody in activities
- X Being polite to fellow students
- X Accepting differences
- X Checking to see that someone is okay if you notice a problem
- X Participating in extra curricula activities which help you to meet more people
